

Alien Isolation: first look!

The penis-headed xenomorphs go all survival horror!

➔ IN RECENT times, Alien games have been a bit, well, "West Ham". Sega, luckily, is hoping to address that with this: Alien Isolation. Hoping very much to stay true to the premise of the first game, there's one venue – a trading station on the fringes of space – and just one alien, stalking you like a particularly determined paparazzo. It's out this Christmas.

TOOTHY TERROR!

THE ALIEN IS TERRIFYING!

"Our alien is a truly terrifying creature, as intelligent as he is hostile, relentless, brutal and unstoppable," is how the developer describes your toothy stalker. It's a constant threat in the game, providing ridiculous tension.

He took the news he needed another filling badly

ALL-NEW ALIEN INCOMING!

Look out for the release on PC, PS3, PS4, Xbox 360 and Xbox One at Christmas.

AVPGALAXY.NET

"If one more person mentions my left arm spent too long in the sun..."

YOU PLAY AS RIPLEY!

Although not Sigourney Weaver's iconic heroine from the films. This game features her daughter, Amanda, who was briefly mentioned in the director's cut of the 1986 movie Aliens, on a mission to find her mum.

The pizza-slice wallpaper left a lot to be desired

YOU'RE THE PREY!

The "survival horror" bit is very simple – the game's single alien stalks you throughout and you have to survive, improvising tools, weapons and solving puzzles in order to keep one step ahead of frenzied death.

The latest Henry Hoover model shocked everyone

THE STORY!

Set 15 years after the events of Alien, it begins with the discovery of the flight recorder from the Nostromo – the spaceship from that film. The recorder's taken to a space station which just happens to have an alien on the loose.

"Oof! That new spinning workout was brutal!"

HIGH-STAKES HIDE AND SEEK!

Very rarely will you have a gun, and firing it can cause more trouble than good. So you'll spend much of your time simply trying to traverse an alien-filled room without it spotting you, by holding your breath and filling your spacepants!